When we think of tea we naturally think of it as coming from the Orient, but right here in Fayette County farmers have been harvesting thousands of acres of "tea" during the past two weeks, and most of them probably did not know it.

I am referring to alfalfa. Yes, just common, ordinary alfalfa, such as grown right here in Fayette County. It makes a delicious, healthful tea. I know, because I drink it frequently, and a host of other folks scattered throughout the nation, do likewise.

You see alfalfa, stems as well as leaves, produces an alkaline food drink, and as the term alkaline indicates, it is a non-acid beverage. Ordinary tea contains the harmful tannic acid.

Practically all of the necessary organic minerals needed for a healthy body are found in alfalfa, including calcium, magnesium, phosphorus, sulphur, silica, potassium, sodium and other important elements, including vitamins.

Is it any wonder that leading health authorities recommend alfalfa tea for health? Try it, both hot and iced, and you will be surprised.

For several days, recently, Mrs. G. D. Baker, North North Street, wondered why the milk deliveryman seemed to pay no attention to the notes left in the milk bottles telling him what to leave.

Finally she halted him as he was leaving the morning's supply of milk and asked him why he had not followed the orders left on the note.

"I never received any orders; none were left in the bottles," he declared.

Next morning Mrs. Baker decided to keep a lookout to see what became of the written orders left in the bottles.

She did not have long to wait. A bird, presumably an English sparrow, dipped down, alighted on top of the bottle containing the written orders, and the next instant had seized the piece of paper in his beak and was flying away to place it in its nest.

While I was at the recreational center at Gardner Park the other night, I saw an old friend that I hadn't seen in a long time and of course we started a conversation.

My friend told me that a cousin of his was in London, England at the time of the many German raids on it, and this story came out of bombings.

While one of the biggest air raids of the war was in progress, a lone man was in the streets and it seemed he was looking for something. As soon as the air raid warden saw him he raced out to him and shouted "What the hell are you doing out here while an air raid is going on?" The man was by this time looking rather blue and he answered, "Oh I say old man, I seem to 'ave lost my teeth and I can't find them." The reply came quick and to the point. "I wouldn't worry about my teeth now, after all, the Germans 'ain't dropping sandwiches."

The Fayette School garden out on the County Home farm produces its own evidence that it is a victory garden. A potato dug up out there had grown in the shape of a perfect V for victory. Kenneth Craig, former school superintendent at Madison Mills who is going to Good Hope next fall brought the evidence into the office. Strange how many symbols of war and victory turn up now. . . or could it be that they just attract attention more now?

Bread Supply Is Threatened
By OPA Muddle, Ohioan Says

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(P)—Representative Jenkins (R-Ohio), chairman of the Republican Congressional Food Study Committee, said today "the bread supply of the entire nation is threatened because of the administration's muddled and ineffective food policies."

Asserting there is a critical corn shortage, he added in a statement that thousands of bakeries and other industries using the grain, including plants engaged in war production, will be compelled to close unless Office of Price Administration ceilings on corn are revised immediately.

Jenkins' statement came just before the House agriculture committee met to consider legislation to put all war time food controls in the hands of one person.

President Roosevelt has turned down suggestions by two bipartisan congressional delegations that power over food production, transportation, distribution and rationing be so concentrated.

House farm bloc leaders have expressed a desire that the complete powers be placed with Chester C. Davis, war food administrator, who does not now have supervision over rationing, which is done by OPA.

Of the corn situation, Jenkins said:

"Because of government muddling and its complete lack of

Rome Can Escape
Bombing By Allies

But British Spokesman Warns That City Will Be Spared Only If It Keeps Out of War—Allied Air Assault Grows in Spite of German Scoffing

LONDON, June 23.—(P)—An RAF commentator made clear today that Rome could be removed definitely and permanently from under the threat of Allied bombing alone if it were made an open city and the United Nations were convinced it was not participating in the Axis war effort.

The commentator, who would not permit the use of his name, emphasized that this did not mean a decision had been reached to bomb the Italian capital.

He said the presence of the Vatican and other ancient shrines in Rome should not obscure the city's military and industrial importance. He emphasized the sole objective of bombing was to reduce the enemy's resistance and that curtailment of this process would mean the unnecessary loss of lives in an Allied invasion.

Recalling that Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels a year ago assured Germans after the first 1,000-bomber raid at Cologne that the RAF could not keep up such attacks, the commentator said the British air force sent more than twice as many planes to attack the Reich last May as in May, 1942. Last May the RAF dropped four times as many bombs as in May, 1942, he said, and the crew loss rate per ton of bombs was reduced more than a third.

FOR FOOD SUBSIDIES

Most Liberal Offer Yet But Scrap Is Expected

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(P)—Legislation limiting to $500,000,000 a year government payments to force down food prices was thrown into the congressional battle over subsidies today.

The Senate Banking committee, after a two-hour session behind closed doors, approved by a voice vote a revised version of an amendment by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) which would have set a $250,000,000 ceiling on subsidy payments to offset decreases in retail food prices.

Regarded as the most liberal of the anti-subsidy proposals, the measure was in for an admitted stiff floor battle.

Battering of Italy Tapers Off But Reds Raid Bases Behind Axis Lines

Germany's war foundries in the Ruhr underwent a violent new storm of bombs before dawn today as hundreds of RAF block-buster raiders attacked the steel center of Muelheim (pop. 136,000) and returned by the light of great fires still burning from an assault on nearby Krefeld 24 hours earlier.

Waves of U. S. Flying Fortresses kept up the big-scale offensive by daylight, raiding unspecified targets across the channel.

The British air ministry said the night attack on Mueheim was "well concentrated" and returning fires declared they saw flames still shooting up from both Krefeld and Huls. Huls was hit by American Fortresses yesterday.

DNB, the German news agency, said the British also hit Oberhausen in the Ruhr, inflicting heavy damage, and bitterly characterized the attacks as "terror raids."

An RAF communique listed 35 bombers as missing—nine less than Monday night's raid by more than 700 planes—for a two-day toll of 79 aircraft.

The ancient city of Muelheim is the site of important steel rolling mills, foundries and engine works. It lies seven miles west of Battered Essen, home of the giant Krupp munitions works. In the Mediterranean, the para-

Novelist-farmer Takes Dark View of Future

COLUMBUS, June 23.—(P)—Louis Bromfield, Richland County author-farmer, says "Our growing food shortage may become permanent. America's abundance is at an end. There will probably be food riots in larger cities this winter."

"And the prospect we must face is that of feeding the entire world for two or three years after the war. For five years after the war, no matter how much feed we produce, it won't be enough," he told the Trade Association executives conference here last night.

Bromfield predicted industrialization of American farms after the war and added "that means the virtual end of one-family farms."

DeGaulle-Giraud Dual For Power
Handicaps War Effort Of French

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALGIERS, June 23.—(P)—One of the hottest issues in French North Africa—army recruiting—came to the fore today as the French forces of liberation remained divided in allegiance between two commanders in chief, Generals Charles De Gaulle and Henri Giraud.

It was apparent the duel for power, between the two leaders and their factions would be quickly resumed following a compromise settlement yesterday continuing the status quo in military control.

Giraudists indicated they were insisting recruiting be on a territorial basis, thereby excluding the fighting French from drawing manpower from North Africa.

Sporadic outbursts of violence continued last night despite patrols of troops, sent into the area under a proclamation by President Roosevelt. At least six Negroes were injured.

Throughout most of the night, the streets were virtually deserted.

War Labor Board Claims Victory in Dispute, Too, As Production Resumed

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(P)

—The United Mine Workers' decision to dig coal for the government until October 31 ended the nation's third general wartime mine strike today, but operators and others protested the main issue was merely postponed, not settled.

The back-to-work order of UMW President John L. Lewis and his policy committee was conditional, and a prolonged fight was foreshadowed. Besides fixing a new albeit more distant deadline, Lewis told the government in effect if it wanted coal it could not restore direction of the mines to their owners.

His statement also carried a broad indication the miners would resort to the courts to obtain the pay for underground travel time which they failed to get from the War Labor Board.

"Violation," Say Operators
A statement issued in behalf of the Appalachian operators declared the action of the UMW policy committee "is in direct violation of the War Labor Board's directive of June 18."

"If the president," said the operators, referring to Mr. Roosevelt, "permits the mines to be operated under the terms laid down by John L. Lewis, the main issue goes unresolved. Nothing is settled. The present strike is merely postponed. The main question now is, can Mr. Lewis continue to defy the sole agency designated by the United States Government to make final determinations in labor disputes."

The immediate reaction of WLB Chairman William Davis to the miners' decision was expressed in these words:

"I take Mr. Lewis' statement to mean the production of coal will be resumed under the conditions ordered by the War Labor Board, and I think that's all the country is interested in. It appears that the new deadline is Halloween, when pumpkins frighten children."

Question Marks Remain

Whether this victory claim was shared by a majority of the board was uncertain. Technically Lewis was still in defiance of the board. He refused to sign the contract as directed, calling it "an infamous yellow-dog contract," even though —The combination of Allied air raids and railway sabotage inside France has been immobilizing about 200 trains daily, according to information reaching fighting French headquarters here through persons escaping from German-occupied Europe.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(P)

Both the airmen who swooped across the English Channel and the French Guerrillas operating behind enemy lines concentrate on crippling transportation, a headquarters spokesman said today, particularly by putting railway locomotives out of commission. Many locomotives beyond range of the marauding flyers succumb to the boiler-wrecking tactics of the saboteurs or are wrecked in derailments engineered by Guerrillas.

NAVY OIL CONTRACT ON ELK HILLS VOID

Cancellation, However, Not To Halt Inquiry

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(P)

—The Navy's now-cancelled contract with Standard Oil for development of the Elk Hills, Calif. Reservoir held the spotlight here today.

Assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell told the House Public Lands committee the deal was more far-reaching than the notorious Teapot Dome leases of the 20's but emphasized he was not questioning the Navy's "good faith". Thereupon Chairman Peterson (D., Fla.) decided to exact more information with resumed hearings Friday.

Secretary Knox asked to be heard.

Peterson also named a group to appear before the House Rules committee in search of authority to visit the Elk Hills region. At the same time, the Senate took up a resolution by Senator Nye (R., N. D.) for a separate inquiry.

'PHONE MARVELS ARE DESCRIBED TO ROTARY CLUB

War-time Difficulties Are Eased by Long-time Planning, 'Tis Said

Washington C. H. Rotarians and their guests listened with intense interest to a briefly told story of the marvelous achievements and developments of the telephone industry in the United States when told Tuesday by John Dawson, transmission and protection engineer for the Ohio Bell Telephone Company, from Columbus, at the luncheon meeting of the club at the Country Club.

Dawson, although disclaiming any ability as a public speaker, talked in a most entertaining but matter-of-fact manner, without use of technical terms. As a result his hearers appreciated and appeared to absorb much of the information which he detailed in rapid-fire style.

Commenting upon the tremendous difficulties faced by the telephone industry in war-time, Dawson declared, that had it not been for long range planning by the telephone companies many years prior to the war, the communications service of the nation would have been seriously upset since Pearl Harbor.

Without apology he said that the service to civilians could not be expanded as much as had been sought since the beginning of the war, and civilian service had been retarded in other ways because of the necessity for taking care of the government demands brought about by the war effort.

In the last year and a half, he said, increased telephone circuits had amounted to more than three million miles. Toll service, he added showed an increase in the last two years, of more than the total increase over the past 17 years.

As an illustration of the efficiency obtained by the standardization of equipment of the Bell Telephone Company, he said that "Bill Turner, repair man for the Ohio Bell Telephone office in Washington C. H. could be assigned to any distant point such as San Francisco, if emergency required and could pick up the work there and proceed as well as any other repair man on the job."

Touching some of the developments of the telephone industry in recent years, Dawson related that:

Since 1917 more than 4 1/2 billion dollars have been invested in addition to telephone plant in the United States.

Average wages of telephone employees are 2 1/2 times as high as they were at the beginning of World War I.

Typical long distance telephone charges were three to five times higher in 1917 than they are today.

There are twice as many telephones in the United States to speed up today's war effort as there were in World War I.

The United States has four times as many telephones as Germany, Italy and Japan combined.

More toll calls were handled in 1942 than during three whole years at the time of World War I.

The number of telephones installed and moved in Washington D. C., since Pearl Harbor is eight times greater than the total number of telephones in Yokohama, Japan.

One out of every three dollars billed to telephone subscribers in the United States goes for taxes.

The telephone industry is now paying 14 times as much in taxes as it did during World War I.

Annual taxes paid by the Bell Telephone System (not including Federal excise taxes added to subscribers' bills) are equal to $16 per year for each telephone used.

Taxes levied on the telephone business in one year are enough to buy Garand rifles for an army of six million men.

Three out of four Bell System men hold Red Cross First Aid Certificates.

At the conclusion of Dawson's talk, the response was given by A. B. Murray, who expressed appreciation for the educational value of the information imparted by the speaker.

New Committee Named For Handling County's Wartime Meat Problem

Ray Brandenburg, automobile dealer and farmer, today shouldered the responsibility of helping iron some of the kinks out of the wartime meat problems as chairman of the county's new War Meat committee, according to Harry Silcott, chairman of the county's USDA War board.

The committee, it was explained, is similar to other set setups throughout Ohio to handle the meat program administered jointly by the War Boards and the Food Distribution Administration.

Other members of the committee headed by Brandenburg are: Walter McCoy, livestock producer; Robert Helfrich, meat wholesaler and retailer; Dr. E. W. Bolton, veterinarian; W. L. O'Brien, chairman of the county Ration Board and W. J. Hilty, superintendent of the county schools.

The announcement of the committee appointments said the new committee would assume leadership and responsibility for the meat program in Fayette County and that immediate problems facing the committee include the routing of livestock slaughter into normal commercial channels.

Special efforts will be made it was said, to insure the slaughter permit system and consumer rationing program working effectively in the county. The committee also is to give special attention to promoting sanitation in slaughtering and handling of meat, to prevent waste and to conserve meat byproducts.

The committee will review outstanding permits and quotas to determine whether they are justified or excessive. It will have authority to approve or reject, in accordance with official instructions and procedures, all applications for slaughter permits received in the future.

It also will be the duty of the committee to call the provisions of those persons who are slaughtering meat for sale without the necessary permits, either through lack of knowledge of the orders or in willful disregard of them, and to report flagrant violations to FDA. Additional community war meat committees may be established within the county if necessary.

The new chairman declared: "Meat that is slaughtered and sold outside of the rationing system is black market meat. Black markets sabotage the war effort and the price of food as a weapon in achieving victory. Hides, fat and by-products must not be wasted by slaughtering facilities that are inadequate, and at the same time, unsanitary slaughter is a menace to public health."

Two war agencies, the Office of Defense Transportation and the Office of War Information have lately warned that the railroads are being driven to the limit, and that to carry the loads of the future they must be supplied with necessary equipment.

Director J. B. Eastman of the ODT says: "One of the best ways to get the most out of transportation equipment is to keep it going, avoid delays, and increase the amount of work done per unit of time. In the dozen years which followed the last World War, the railroads spent several billions of dollars in the improvement of their roadbeds, tracks and terminal facilities. They are getting the benefit of that expenditure now."

If they are to continue rolling without delay, their equipment must be maintained and replaced as necessity requires.

The Office of War Information observes that the battle of transportation in the United States is now being won, and the war and necessary civilian transportation load is being carried. "The victories, however, are not necessarily permanent," says OWI. "Railroad equipment, and tank cars are wearing out. Few replacements are being made."

The railroads have been highly praised for all quarters for the job they have done. But praise alone won't haul oil to the East Coast. Praise won't take the place of steel rails or of locomotives. Praise alone won't move freight and troops. Railroad managements will appreciate praise more after the job is done. Right now they are like firemen working against time to rescue the occupants of a burning building. They need the tools of their trade.

RAISING SERVICE ALLOTMENTS

With the increase in the cost of living apparent on every side, Republicans in Congress have initiated a move to increase allotments to service men's dependents by 20 percent. Government employees generally have been granted increases to meet the rising cost of food, clothing, and household needs, and the justice of granting similar increases to the dependents of men in our armed forces should be obvious to everyone.

The War Department has already conceded that "something should be done" in this direction, and the present scale of allowances is so low that something must be done quickly to avoid the possibility of real suffering in many cases during the coming winter. At present a dependent wife receives $50.00 per month, with $12 allowed for the first child and $10 for each additional youngster. Two parents of a soldier are entitled to a maximum of $47 on proof of dependency under the present legislation, and many of them find it impossible to manage even with the large number of available jobs because of illness or advanced age. The raise in allowances appears likely to get a lot of support.

TAXES AND OTHER PROBLEMS

High as those taxes are you are now paying, you may be sure of one thing. They'll be still higher in the not too distant future.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The Capital in Wartime:

The Army has hair in its hair. In spite of numerous protests from the Army that it doesn't use human hair—or spiderwebs—in its bombights, the bewhiskered story keeps popping up and along come batches of raven or golden tresses—or at least offers of same.

The latest story (and the Army would like to snatch the guy that wrote it) is that milady's locks needed for those precious bombights should be 21 inches long. That "21 inches" must have been struck in to confuse the enemy. It sure confused the Army.

The prize offer, however, came from a patriotic midwestern woman who suggested turning over a room in her home to black widow spiders, in which sanctuary they might spin all the webs the Army could carry away. It's a nice idea if the Army had any use for black widow spiderwebs.

The Army's only explanation is that it has better bombight cross-hairs than ever were spun by a spider or tattered by a follicle.

The White House isn't the only place in Washington where Harry Hopkins carries weight.

The other night, prowlers broke into an apartment house here. From one apartment, they stole eight $25 war bonds and other things. In another, they copied a perfectly good camera—and other things. They ransacked a fourth, they picked up $22.50 in cash.

To the local police, it was just another housebreaking and investigation proceeded in the routine manner, which is slightly slow. Then came a call to the District commissioners from the White House—Harry Hopkins speaking. It was, it seems, the Hopkins' maid who had been robbed of that $22.50.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. Bastille Day, when the populace of Paris stormed the Bastille and liberated the prisoners.
2. The secretary of war and the secretary of the navy.
3. The president's flag consists of the president's seal in bronze upon a blue background, with a large white star in each corner. The secretary of the navy's flag has a white "fouled" anchor in the center and a white star in each corner. The secretary of war's flag is scarlet, a white star in each corner and the United States coat of arms in the center.

tant future, or you will be paying out the equivalent of taxes in some form of compulsory savings. It has already been announced by our Secretary of the Treasury that 16 billions more must be found somewhere for war financing before the end of this year. A new victory bond drive is scheduled for September, and this will probably be only the first of a series of such periodic efforts to induce savings.

There is much sentiment in Washington and elsewhere for a compulsory "post-war reserves" saving program. It may serve to combat inflationary threats which are still with us and help to provide our government with necessary funds for the prosecution of the war.

BABY FOOD SITUATION

Because of low point values placed by the OPA on baby foods, many adults have been buying them. This diversion has reached such a point that one major manufacturer has requested food orders to ask the public to stop using them.

Baby ration books would call for something over 250,000,000 dozen cans a year, if all were used, but the industry is restricted to producing not more than 40,000,000 dozens. There isn't enough to feed everybody on strained foods.

Presumably most of the offenders have assumed that the low point value means a plentitude of baby food. It doesn't. There's a scarcity. So please don't take the food out of infants' mouths.

Cardiograph Makes Heart Test Simple

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YOU HAVE probably heard of the electrocardiograph. You may even have had an electrocardiogram taken. The procedure is painless and simple. You walk into a doctor's office and you say, "This is the day I am going to have my electrocardiogram." And he says, "Oh, yes, I will introduce you to Miss EKG," and that is the last you see of the doctor for that week.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through a column.

Miss EKG turns out to be a very handsome young woman in a white uniform who takes you into a private room and has you lie down and she rolls up one sleeve and rubs the skin with salt solution and straps an electrode to it and then the same thing to the other and the same thing to your left leg. Then she brings over a box that looks a good deal like a portable radio and begins to turn dials and says, "Uh-huh," to herself several times; or if she is very cultured she says, "Ah." And then finally she says to you, "Hold your breath." She does this three or four times and then she puts something on your chest just over your heart and does it again and then takes the straps off and politely wipes the salt solution off your arms and leg and says, "I think I have caught you in a very favorable pose. Come back next Wednesday." And that is all there is to it.

Measures Heart Changes

You come back next Wednesday and the doctor has some little strips of paper that look like small photographic films and he says "I see-ee-ee." Then he looks at you over his glasses and says either, "Well, there isn't very much the matter with you," or he says, "You will have to give up tobacco, wine, red meat, golf, the movies, kissing your wife—or anybody else—and take one of these pills three times a day and come back in six months."

What goes on behind all this is a little complicated, but it makes sense. Miss EKG with her instrument has been measuring the change in the electrical potential of your heart muscle. If you take any muscle of the body and put an electrode on it, as the muscle contracts there will be a change in electrical potential from one electrode to the other.

The heart is a muscle and the mysterious box that is drawn up beside you when you are having an electrocardiogram taken contains a very delicate galvanometer string which is so delicate that it measures the slightest changes in potential when the heart muscle contracts. By throwing a beam of light across this string during its deflection, a tracing on a revolving photographic film is made which is the electrocardiogram.

If the heart muscle does not beat regularly, the tracing will show where the irregularity exists. It will also show a block in the conduction of the heart muscle if that exists. It will also show many defects in the heart muscle.

Assessing its value as a diagnostic agent in heart disease, we could get along without it, but it often gives confirmatory evidence of value.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

THE PAST few weeks melted away almost before they began for Steve. He laughingly said to big Tanner on night as his eye caught sight of a calendar on their kitchen wall, "There's something screwy about the weeks lately. It's Monday and then it's Saturday again. I know there should be some days in between."

This morning as he stood in a warm pool of sunlight on the loading dock, watching a crew of dark-faced Mexicans busily loading freight cars, he felt a glow of contentment take possession of him—contentment that comes from accomplishment. The plant was running like a watch. They were two weeks ahead of their production schedule. Shut-downs are costly in production plants and they hadn't had one since that first exciting moment when Steve had thrown the main power switch and the new machinery had sprung to vibrant life. Every morning Tanner had taken a test batch of rubber from the production line and tested it carefully in his laboratory. Each day the report had come to Steve's desk marked, "Okay with government specifications."

Steve turned briefly to the loading foreman before he went back to his office. "These cars ought to be loaded by four. Call the freight agent and tell him to pull them out tonight. We have five cars of raw material to set in first thing in the morning."

Jean, too, had felt a warming pride in her work. Had shared with Steve the thrill of getting the great plant started. Every time a big shipment left the plant she felt the importance of it to the total war effort, and she was grateful for the small part she had been able to play. It wasn't like selling furs to Henri's "goldfish," furs that served only to promote personal vanity with a set whose greatest foible was already vanity.

Here was something real, something vital! Something that reached far beyond any social group, or even any nation, something that was world-embracing! She could see now what Melvin had meant that first day he had come home in his new uniform seeming with indignation. "Some of these guys burn me! It's a privilege to serve your country, not a duty!" She knew in this instant what he had meant.

For the past two weeks Steve and Jean had eaten their dinners together at Tony's and then danced to some of his "latest Americano music," which dated back five years. Jean's admiration for Steve continued to mount. His consideration for her comfort and enjoyment was as thorough as his business efficiency!

Twice during that last two weeks Curley had come swinging into Tony's and greeted them with his customary familiarity. Jean had been only coolly polite, but had each time fought against a racing heart, while Steve rescued her by engaging Curley in polite chit-chat.

Now it had been several days since that last brief, disturbing glimpse of Curley. She had come home from Tony's early tonight explaining to Steve that she could do about 12 hours of good sleep. Her mind was passively calm as she slipped into the cool fragrance of clean sheets. It was only a matter of seconds until she was lost to the world in a dreamless sleep.

Breaking through, at first in hazy dimness and then with sharp reality, came the plaintive twanging notes of a steel guitar. Jean sat up suddenly, rubbing her sleep-laden eyes, as a low, masculine voice flowed into the slow rhythm. It was Curley! Fury shook her. She slipped her feet into woolly mules and tossed a robe lightly around her shoulders. At the open window she should see the moonlight glint on the steel strings of his guitar.

"Listen, Romeo, I'm in no mood for your serenading, and you woke me from a sound sleep!" she said sharply.

Curley threw back his head in laughter. "But, senorita, is it not worth being awakened to hear Curley's beautiful songs?"

She ignored the question. "Either you go away from my window and stop bothering me," she said shortly, "or I will call the police!"

She closed her window with a crash and stood in the shadows trembling until she saw Curley walk slowly over to his old Fordango, toss the instrument lightly into the back seat and rattle off down the street. Then she went to bed to lay in the quietness of her room, her heart beating madly.

Sleep had become impossible. Finally she decided to get up and write some letters. She snapped on her desk lamp and had written part of a page when she heard someone calling her name in the courtyard below. She went quickly to the window and looked down at the squat figure of Manzanara's only dimly visible. His voice trembled with excitement when he saw her. "Oh, senorita, I am so sorry to disturb you so late, but I saw your light. My dearest boy, he is so very, very sick. The doctor he has gone away and we are afraid our little one might—" His voice thickened into a sob.

"Wait, I'll be right down!" She threw on a slack suit and ran down to the courtyard. Even in the dusky light she could see the white tautness of Manzanara's face. Together they hurried up the quiet street to the dimly-lit police station. Jean recognized the pharmacist man who opened the door for them.

"What is it?" she asked him anxiously.

"I'm not a doctor, but I'm sure it is the streptococcus infection in the blood stream," the man said gravely.

"That's what took our oldest boy just two years ago," Manzanara whispered.

"We must get the serum from the hospital at Puerto Yaverto," the pharmacist man said.

Manzanara shrugged helplessly. "It will not help," he moaned brokenly. "It takes too long. When we got back last time you remember it was too late."

A sudden thought flashed through Jean's mind. "Why don't you have Curley FLY for the serum?" she cried.

For an instant Manzanara stopped pacing. Hope brightened on his face, then faded. "All private planes they are grounded in defense zones," he reminded her.

"I know," she argued, "but in an emergency surely you could issue a special permit!"

Manzanara glowed abruptly with life. "Sure I can!" he yelled. "I write one immediate! And we call the hospital to bring this serum to him at that airport!"

Jean's feet scarcely touched the ground as she ran the short block to the hotel courtyard. She leaped into the station wagon and, with a squeal of tires, swung into the street. The needle on the speedometer shot to 60 then 70 as the car sped crazily through the night until she saw ahead the bobbing tail light of Curley's old Fordango.

She swerved around him sharply to stop in a thick curtain of dust. Then she was out of the car—running back to meet him. In breathless, tense words, she explained her mission, gave him Manzanara's written permit. Almost before she had finished the last sentence, she was alone again in the dusty road. Curley's old car was rapidly disappearing from sight in the direction of the rancho.

Pay-Go Tax Plan Questions Answered

(Editor's Note: To answer many questions arising out of the new pay-as-you-go income tax law, James Marlow and George Zielke are starting today a series of three articles on how the law will work. Tomorrow: Those whose income isn't covered by the pay roll collection system—including those whose income is less than in 1942.)

By MARLOW AND ZIELKE

WASHINGTON — The new pay-as-you-go income tax law works out in different ways for different groups of taxpayers.

But one part of it affects most of us: the pay roll deduction, or check-off.

If you're on wages or salary (exceptions: Persons in the armed services, ministers, farm workers, household servants), your employer has to take a certain amount out of your wage envelope starting in July and hand it over to the government.

The check-off for these taxes will be 20 percent of everything over certain exemptions, which are $12 a week if single, $24 if married, plus $6 for each dependent. But the check-off may not come out to the penny if your employer decides to use a set of government charts instead of figuring out each paycheck separately.

If you aren't earning enough to owe an income tax, you'll still be subject to a victory tax deduction on everything over $12 a week—but it'll be 3 percent instead of the present 5 percent.

If you're an average taxpayer, earning up to $2,700 a year if single or $3,500 a year (with or without dependents), getting all your income from wages or salaries—and making more than in 1942—you're all through with those quarterly income tax payments.

But you'll still have to fill out a tax return every March 15—and for the next two years, at least, you'll probably owe some money at that time.

That's because of postponement, for the average taxpayer, of 1942 taxes. The payments you made in March and June will be credited against your 1943 taxes, instead.

Congress decided to cancel a large part of your 1942 or 1943 tax, whichever is lower, on this basis:

SPORT SHIRTS

All Colors, Sizes and Styles

Store

If the tax is $50 or less, cancel it entirely.

If it's over $50 but less than $66.67, cancel $50 of it.

If it's over $66.67, cancel 75 percent of it.

The uncanceled portion comes due in two equal installments next March and March, 1945.

Next March 15 the average taxpayer still will have some figuring to do:

First, a final accounting of 1943 income taxes. The rates and exemptions and deductions will be the same as those you wrestled with last March: Rates—6 percent normal tax, 13 percent surtax on the first $2,000 of taxable income, higher surtaxes for taxable income above that figure.

Then you'll have to figure up your 1943 victory tax—despite the change in the amount taken from your pay, the victory tax still will be 5 percent of everything over $624 a year. But you'll be able to take certain credits—25 percent of the tax if single (up to a limit of $500), 40 percent if married (up to a limit of $1,000) plus 2 percent for each dependent (limit $100 each)—if this year you spend an equivalent amount for war stamps and bonds, life insurance premiums (on insurance in force last Sept. 1) and payment of old debts.

After you've figured your net victory tax, you'll add it to the income tax for 1943.

Then you figure out how much of it you've already paid:

1. The payments you made in March and June of this year.

2. Total taken out of your pay for victory tax during the first half of 1943.

3. Total taken out of your pay under the check-off during the rest of the year.

Then you'll subtract all these payments from the total amount of victory and income taxes due, to find out how much, if any, you still owe.

And you'll probably owe something for the next two years—because of those installments from the uncanceled part of 1942 taxes.

Of course, if you paid your 1942 taxes in full last March, you'll have a refund coming.

CRAIG'S

Ensign of WAVES Coming Here To Answer Questions

In answer to numerous requests, Ensign E. M. Leikin, interviewing officer of the WAVES will be in Washington C. H. Thursday from 1 P. M. to 4 P. M., according to word received from Petty Officer First Class A. W. Galloway, navy recruiter in charge of this district. Miss Leikin will be in the Probate Court room in the Court House during that period.

Ensign Leikin has been on active duty with the WAVES for some time, and is making this special trip to Washington C. H. to answer the many questions that are in the minds of young women here relative to service in this important uniformed women's branch of the armed forces.

The Navy recruiter declared: "There is an urgent call at the present time for young women between the ages of 20 and 36 for immediate service in the WAVES. There are unlimited opportunities for advancement in every branch of the WAVES service, and women are needed as yeoman and stenographers, storekeepers, in the radio and communication field, hospital corps and as operators of that new and amazing device that instructs Navy fliers, the Link Trainer. Practically every civilian job now being handled by women has its counterpart in the WAVES."

Women wishing to serve their country in the WAVES are urged to contact Ensign Leikin during her visit to Washington C. H. and obtain complete and up-to-the-minute information on basic requirements, Petty Officer Galloway said.

Red Sox Beginning To Sock; May Muscle in on Yankees

By JUDSON BAILEY
(By the Associated Press)

The Boston Red Sox are beginning to sock once more and at any time now they are likely to muscle in on the honeymoon of the New York Yankees and Washington Senators have been enjoying at the top of the American League.

It took Boston a long time to get rolling. At the end of the first month of the season they were in the cellar.

But in the last three games Boston has blasted out seven homers against the best pitching the Philadelphia Athletics could muster and last night moved into a tie for third place with the Cleveland Indians, five games out of first place.

The Red Sox opened the campaign with a desperate outfield problem, but they seem to have solved this by a succession of deals both in the minors and majors and have well earned the improvement they have made in the standings in the second month of the season.

In addition Cecil (Tex) Hughson, the lean pitching star of the Sox, has proved himself unquestionably the outstanding hurler in the league last night as he beat the Athletics 7-1 with five-hit pitching for his seventh victory and fourth straight.

Washington narrowed the gap between first and second place to two games by nosing out the Yankees 3-2 with Mickey Vernon hitting a home run and a triple to star for the Senators.

The Chicago White Sox whiplashed the St. Louis Browns 5-3 in a night game to advance into a virtual tie for sixth place with the Athletics.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers captured their third straight from the New York Giants 7-4 and cut the lead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals to two games.

Big Paul Derringer shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 for the Cubs in a morning game at Chicago.

The Pirates, still short of infielders, had to use outfielder Johnny Wroblek at third base after Bob Elliott was injured by a smashing grounder in the second inning. As a result Wroblek made a two-base error in the seventh inning, a wild throw into the dugout that put Harry Lowrey on second, and Len Merullo scored him with a single.

Boston beat the Phillies 7-6.

The community recreation center at Gardner Park has been busily engaged the last week in playing off the ping-pong tournaments.

Of the three classes for the tournament, two championships have been played. In the games between the boys over 16, Hogan Johnson was the winner, and in the class of boys under 16, Bob Kelly is the champion. The girls under 16 have not played yet, but these games will be played off by the end of this week.

Starting next Monday, there will be three double ping-pong matches played. Also there have been plans made for other tournaments, such as horseshoes, tennis, and basketball tournaments.

Many games are needed for the younger members of the center, and friends are asked to donate games to the organization.

Indian Lead In AA Being Cut by Brews

(By The Associated Press)

The rampaging Milwaukee Brewers stood within a game and a half of the American Association lead today as their sizzling winning streak continued unbroken.

They won their ninth straight game last night defeating St. Paul 4 to 3. League leading Indianapolis, meantime, lost ground in suffering a 3 to 1 setback at the hands of Columbus.

The league leaders never seriously threatened Ted Wilks, who gave up but six hits, and Columbus finally broke a 1-1 deadlock with two counters in the eighth.

Minneapolis and Kansas City broke even in a double header. Jimmy Pofahl's homer with the bases loaded in the fifth inning helped Minneapolis win the opener, 6 to 1. The second, a tight hurling duel between Herb Bain and Floyd Bevins, went 10 innings before Kansas City broke the scoreless tie to win, 1-0.

The Toledo game at Louisville was postponed.

Reds Facing Champs Now

CINCINNATI, June 23.—(P)—The Cincinnati Reds resume their series with the St. Louis Cardinals this afternoon following a highly profitable day of rest in which the fifth-place Reds gained a half game each on the third-place Pittsburgh Pirates and the fourth-place Philadelphia Phillies, who lost yesterday's game.

Ray Starr, who hurled a 10 to 0 victory over the Pirates in a 14-inning game last week, has been nominated for mound duty by Manager Bill McKechnie.

Morton Cooper will go after his tenth triumph of the year.

The Reds, admittedly "the team I'll have to beat," says Southworth—will be at a decided disadvantage throughout the Cardinal series because of the loss of Lonnie Frey's services. Frey, suffering a pulled muscle in his left leg, was replaced at second base by Woody Williams.

The world champs conclude the three game series with the Reds Thursday morning in a 11 A. M. ladies day contest. Following that the Cardinals embark on a three-week swing around the loop.

Tennis Meet Cut for War

NEW YORK, June 23.—(P)—The title and the site will be the same as those of the past but otherwise there will be little resemblance between the 1943 National tennis championships and those of preceding years.

The USLTA has determined to decide titleholders in five divisions which will compress the entire competitions into six days beginning Sept. 1 and ending on Labor Day, Sept. 6.

The men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles championships will be run off on the west-side tennis club courts at Forest Hills on those days with the fields in the singles limited to 32 players and the doubles teams held at 16.

Short's Pacer Gets Part of Marion Purse

Judge Patchen, Harry Short's veteran campaigner which he trained at the Fairground track here last spring, cut out a slice of the purse of the 2:18 pace at Marion's harness race meet Tuesday night by finishing third of nine-sixteenths of a mile. All three races were turned in good time with the fastest mile in 2:09. Horsemen here express the conviction that the Marion track is at least three seconds slower on the mile than the Fayette County track, which is known far and wide as one of the fastest half-mile ovals in this part of the country.

Although Judge Patchen was the only horse from here racing Tuesday night, Ernie Smith, a Washington C. H. trainer, drove two horses. He piloted Patsy Mack, which he trained here last year, as she finished seventh and seventh and was then drawn from the last dash, and he was behind Joy Wyn when she finished second, fourth and eighth in the stake for 2:14 trotters.

District Legion Convention To Be Here Sunday

BOTH SESSIONS TO BE HELD IN MEMORIAL HALL

More Than Hundred Veterans Of First World War Are Expected To Attend

With young Americans at battle stations scattered all over the world again fighting oppression of German militarism, veterans of the first World War, who battled the Kaiser's armies into submission only a quarter of a century ago, will gather in Washington C. H. next Sunday for the annual district convention of the American Legion.

Attendance at the convention today remained somewhat of a question mark, but H. E. Wilson, commander of the Paul H. Hughes Post of the Legion here, said he thought "one hundred would be a good guess." He declared that in normal years the attendance would be "at least three times as large," as Walter Hutton, a member of the post's convention committee, pointed out that gasoline rationing and wartime attention to work, would undoubtedly be felt in the turnout this year.

Delegates from all of the 21 posts in the eight-county Seventh district were expected and with them also were expected a number of alternates and post officers as well as Legionnaires merely interested as bystanders in convention affairs.

The Seventh district takes in Fayette, Ross, Pickaway, Highland, Adams, Pike, Scioto and Lawrence counties.

This will be the second district convention for Washington C. H. since the armistice ending the war was signed in 1918. That first convention, an all-day affair, was held at the Country Club.

This year, however, the convention sessions, both morning and afternoon, are to be held in Memorial Hall, with dinner served by the Legion Auxiliary at noon.

The morning session is to start at 10 A. M. and will be devoted strictly to routine business. The afternoon session is to be open to the public, when officers of the State Department will address the gathering. Although Emmett Passmore, the committee member, said he did not know who the speakers would be or what subjects they would take, he said, it could be safely assumed that home front problems would be discussed to give the points of view of veterans of the first World War on the conduct of the second global conflict. He said he felt certain the public would be interested in knowing the Legion's stand on some of these pressing issues.

Gus Boop, the district commander, is to come here from his home in Portsmouth to conduct the meetings.

The noon dinner menu, it was said, would be fitted to the wartime rationing program and the hope was expressed that reservations would be made "as early as possible" with Howard D. Fogle, 50 plans could be made well in advance. In view of the scarcity of meat, the belief was expressed that chicken would be the principal item.

Other members of the committee working with the commander and post adjutant, R. B. Tharp, in arranging the convention program are Jess Maddux and Jess Allen.

CINCINNATI ARRESTED HERE

Physician Claims Quart of Kentucky Liquor Part of First Aid Kit

Dr. Fred Schuster, Cincinnati, pleaded innocent to illegal possession of a quart bottle of liquor, which contained no Ohio tax stamp, on a charge filed before Judge S. A. Murry in Police Court, Wednesday forenoon, and was released on $100 bond.

Dr. Schuster, who is known to many here as a prominent Cincinnati sportsman, was taken into custody about 8:30 A. M. Wednesday, as he was coming in to the city from the Wilmington road, after police had been advised by the State Highway Patrol station at Wilmington that a car bearing the number on the Schuster car was suspected of being a Kentucky liquor running car.

Making vigorous protest against arrest, and refusing to drive to police headquarters, according to Policeman Harley Haggard, who made the arrest, Dr. Schuster was displaced at the wheel by the officer and brought to headquarters.

Search of the car, a Cadillac, brought to light a quart of Kentucky liquor without an Ohio tax stamp, officers said, a loaded army pistol, in a side pocket of the car, many shotgun shells and two or three trap-shooting guns.

Dr. Schuster said he had the liquor as part of his first aid kit, and denounced his arrest as an outrage.

He had been making many trips to this city to shoot pigeons, it was stated, and had been out crowd hunting frequently, with the conservation officer, Chalmers Burns, who said Schuster was enroute here to hunt crows when picked up. Dr. Schuster had visited Sheriff W. H. Icenhower here frequently, and they had shot together on many occasions.

MRS. LEOTA SEARS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Mrs. Sears was a member of the Methodist Church, and is survived by three sisters and two brothers: Mrs. H. E. Kincaid, Sabina; Mrs. Sarah Sollars and Mrs. Zephia Martin, this city; Charles Winters, Oakland, California, and Edward Winters, of Cincinnati. A step-son, Roy Sears, of Charleston, W. Va., also survives.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2:30 P. M. at the Hook Funeral Home, and burial made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery. Rev. George B. Parkin will conduct the services.

TUESDAY HOTTEST DAY OF SEASON

Mercury 94 and Humidity Was Pronounced

Tuesday was the hottest day of the season to date, with the mercury registering 94 degrees for the peak, during the afternoon, and then dropping to 6 for the lowest point.

At 8 A.M. Wednesday the reading was 72 degrees, giving indications of another hot day.

Not only was the temperature at the highest point registered this season, Tuesday, but the humidity was such that the heat felt even more intense than it was, and caused a great deal of discomfort.

Corn loan notes must be paid by July 15, or the owner of the corn forfeits the corn to the government at the agreed price.

However there are only six arms in Fayette County who obtained corn loans, and indications are the loans will be paid in full before the date of expiration.

"Manly deeds and womanly words" is the state motto of Maryland.
